

Last Tuesday evening, luminaries of the design world gathered at the Carlton Hobbs townhouse on East 93rd street to fete the San Francisco Fall Antiques Show along with Ike Kligerman Barkley, the architecture and design firm based in New York and San Francisco.

The party, hosted by Carlton Hobbs, Ike Kligerman Barkley, and the San Francisco Fall Antiques Show, celebrated and previewed the Antiques Show, which opens at the Fort Mason Center in San Francisco on October 23rd. Ike Kligerman Barkley designed the entrance hall this year, which Thomas Kligerman remarked would be revealed when the gates to the show were opened – mums the word for now. The show's theme, this year, is an aptly glittering Rush of Gold: Precious Metals in Art and Antiques.

Two floors of the spectacular Carlton Hobbs were open to guests; the objets, art and antiques – and bar, which poured grapefruit martinis – were lit by the many glowing candlebras. In attendance and hosting were the men of Ike Kligerman Barkley, John Ike, Thomas Kligerman, and Joel Barkley; the Carlton Hobbs team of Carlton Hobbs and Stefanie Rinza, and the Director of the SFFAS, Ariane Triumschat.

Guests included Thomas Jayne, Jacqueline Terrebonne, Howard Christian, Allison Levasseur, Carolyn Englefield, Newell Turner, Jeffrey Bilhuber, Chas Miller III, Birch Coffey, Carl Sorenson, Michael Bruno, Suzanne Stephens, Diana and Mark Jacoby, Marc Kristal, Cynthia Conigliaro, Peter Aaron, Grant Marani, Judith Prause, and Stuart and Sue Feld, among others.
